ABSTRACT

A flexible electronic safe flare system which includes two LED flashing light arrays mounted on a flexible base member with attachment straps for attaching in any of a number of different orientations and configurations. Stands are described for supporting the flare system in positions and orientations for various uses, such as highway light-marking of objects or positions.